LOVE IN A BOARDING-HOUSE.

Miss Hoffman and Mr. Corbit Furnish Yonkers with a Remance.

Yonkers has a real romance, and as a consequence, the young people are all worked up over it. Miss Minnie Jones keeps a fashionable boarding-house at 115 Locust Hill avenue. Miss Katherine Hoffman, of Leavenworth, Kan., was a guest. She is a relative of President McCosh, of Princeton College, and was a schoolmate of Mary Jones, daughter of the Nevada Senator. William Pitman Corbit was also guest. He and Miss Hoffman took long walks together and, as Mr. Corbit puts it, they discovered their hearts were lamsburg, to-day. The building on the east side, No. 73, was only slightly damaged. None of the tenants was injured.

The wrecked building extended back 100 feet. There is not a square foot of any of the walls standing above the foundation. When the rear wall fell it buried all the outbuildings belonging to the tenements in the rear facing on Houston street.

A number of lawsuits for damages will in all probability be brought by tenants and property owners who sustained losses.

Had the collapse of the building occurred during the day, there would undoubtedly have been an appalling loss of life, as from thirty to forty girls were employed sorting paper in the basement and a number of men baling the stock.

MRS. GOLDBERG IS FREE.

Judge Bookstaver Says There was No Attempt at Concealment.

Judge Bookstaver this afternoon granted an absolute divorce, $20 per week a alimony and the custody of her little daughter to the wife of Samuel Goldberg, the private secretary of Justice Van Brunt, o fthe Supreme Court, and who has been running for Governor of the Democratic Club.

Goldberg did not defend the case, It was tried last Monday. It has been said that Goldberg's puil was keeping the case from reaching the public.

Judge Bookstaver, in handing down his decision this afternoon, denied that there was any attempt at concealment.

DUFFY PLEADS SELF-DEFENSE. His Trial for Assault on Lawyer

The trial of John Duffy, saloon-keeper at Teirteenth avenue and Twentisth street, for his alleged assault upon Law-street, for Ms nileged assault upon Law-yer Robert J. Haire, on the night of May 18, was resumed before Judge Mar-tine and a jury in Part II, of the Gen-eral Sossidan this morning.

The defense will recite its side of the story to-day, and will claim that the assault was committed in self-defense.

Lawyer Fred House began the pre-ceedings by having the count charging assault with intent to kill withdrawn from the jury. In his opening he se-verely criticised the methods of Mr. Haire, and said that a jarge portion of his evidence was not the truth.

President Blaut was one of the first to yesterday. The Coney Island Boss was sel, Edward Lauterbach, and several G. Pearson, a speculator, living at accompanied by his bondsman, William G. Pearson, a speculator, living at Sheepshead Bay.

Immediately after the arrival of Mc-Kane Judge R. V. B. Newton strolled into the Sheriff's office and gave himself up to answer a similar charge.

Clerks were at once put to work preparing the bonds in $2.000 each. Mr. Pearson said he would also go on the bond of Judge Newton.

At 1 o'clock the five other men from Gravesend against whom attachments had been issued appeared at the Sheriff's office and gave themselves up. They were accompanied by Henry M. Henderson, who keeps a concert hall on Coney Island. He offered some Coney Island property as a guarantee for the appearance of the men when wanted.

There now promises to be a bitter fight in the Kings County Grand Jury room between Boss McKane and Col. Alexander S. Bacon.

Everybody was surprised when it became known that Col. Bacon had written a letter to the Grand Jury asking, "as an American citizen," for the right to appear before the jury and present his case of the Gravesend affair.

It looked to most people as a move on the part of Col. Bacon to sidetrack the special prosecutors, Edward M. Shepard and Gen. Tracy and to help whom Gov. Flower has cailed an extraordinary Grand Jury.

It was even rumored that Col. Bacon had quarrelied with the Committee of Twenty-live, and had declared that he would handle his own case. But Col. Bacon made the following explanation this morning, which he says will set the matter straight in the eyes of the public: "This affair," said the Colonel, "is a purely personal matter. I was arrested while at Gravesend, and I waived examination and was held for the Grand Jury. I don't propose to have John Y. McKane and Judge Newton cause the Grand Jury to ladiet me for some crime-perhaps murder—while I had nothing to say about it.

"I was informed that McKane had written the District-Attorney to take up my case and so I wrote a letter and furnished the names of the winesses. I am anxious to have the case disposed of by the Grand Jury so that I m ear before the Grand Jury at 10 o'clock b-morrow morning and give testimony, hev will testify against Col. Bacon. The names of the witnesses are: John McKane, John T. Hinman, C. E. Jorris, John Griffin, K. F. Sutherland, eorge F. Kleist, George W. Roderick, V. B. Newton, N. J. Johnson, H. Tandall, J. Cropsey, Harry Sturtevant, L. Henderson, Anson M. Stratton, H. Zilliams.

H. Henderson, Anson M. Stratton, H. Williams.

Mr. Ridgway also subpoenced Dr. R. J. Kent, A. H. Stoiber, William Hughes and Robert S. Doubleday to appear before the Grand Jury at the same time. The names of these witnesses were furnished by Col Bacon. They are the four men who were with Col. Bacon in the carriage when he alighted to serve Mc-Kane with the Injunction from Justice Barnard. They witnessed the alleged assault and arrest of the Colonel.

District-Attorney Ridgway is not at all plensed at the idea of having Col. Bacon's case brought before the Kings County Grand Jury. He said this morning that he had advised the Grand Jury to defer the matter to the extraordinary Grand Jury called by Gov. Flower to prosecute the cose.

The Court of Appeals Decides Against John O'Brien.

Final Decision in the Big Croton Aqueduct Suit.

The Decision of the Lewer Courts

A despatch from Albany this morning announces that in the case of John O'Brien, the Aqueduct contractor, against the city of New York, the Court of Anpeals has affirmed the decision of the lower court against the contractor.

peals has affirmed the decision of the lower court against the contractor.

O'Brien & Clark brought an action to recover $50,000 alleged to be due them from the city on one section of their contract, which included about one-half of the total amount of work done. The other contractors were Brown, Howard & Co., who also have a similar action pending against the city.

Emilinent counsel were employed on both sides, James C. Carter, Ellhu Root and Austin G. Fox appearing for the city and E. T. Lovait, Joseph H. Choate and L. L. Kellogg for O'Brien & Clark.

The plaintiffs chaimed that they had not been allowed by the engineer's returns a large amount of excavations, and they put in a claim also for repairs, which consisted of filling in cavities outside the masonry. The city had discovered that there were unfilled cavities which, it chaimed, should have been filled with masonry, and required the contractors to fill the cavities with cement through holes bored through the walls, by pressure. For this work O'Brien & Clark Claimed compensation under the head, of repairs. They also claimed pay for extra work alleged to have been necessitated by variations from grade, &c.

The case was tried before Justice Ingraham in the Supreme Court Circuit, His decision in substance was that under the terms of the contract the engineer's vertificate was conclusive on both sides and as to the amount of work done, and the city having paid in accordance with that certificate it could not be compolled to pay anything more, and that the plaintiff's claim for extra work and repairs could not be sustained.

It appeared that the confractors had not the certificate of the engineer for the extra work and repairs could not be sustained.

An appeal was taken to the General Term, which confirmed Judge ingraham's decision, and finally to the court of last resort, with the result stated.

This was a test case, and it is believed that the decision saves the city about $1,00,00.
